POC Michael K. Minor, Contracting Officer, (407)380-4096
DESC: 17. MILES 2000 Follow On Contract Potential Sources Sought.
The U. S. Army Simulation, Training and Instrumentation Command (STRICOM) is seeking information from industry concerning the availability of Multiple Integrated Laser Engagement System (MILES)-type Tactical Engagement Simulation Systems (TESS). to include such products as Basic MILES, SAGE-RF, MILES II, MILES 2000, and AGES, as well as similar-type products. Previous CBI announcement PSA-2295 dated 4 March 1999 requested white papers from industry concerning the availability of non-developmental training devices for live force on force training capability.
Information received from that announcement and this notice will be used as one of several factors in determining the acquisition strategy for a potential competitive solicitation for a follow-on contract to the current MILES 2000 TESS contract. The Government has posted a series of questions concerning this potential solicitation at the Follow-On MILES 2000 home page. Request: all interested parties access that site and respond to the questions within 15 days of the date of the publication of this announcement. The responses should be unclassified, concise, and specific. This is not a request for proposals and the information contained herein is for planning purposes only. No additional information is available, respondents will not be notified of the evaluation of the information they provided, and telephone calls are not requested.
